Just one last thing...

Omarama School promotes its five core values based on 'L-I-G-H-T' from the phrase "Omarama, Place of Light", and I summarise - Learning, being Inclusive, Growing, Helping and Truthfulness.

'Values' - it's a bit of a buzz word – but it's one I've thought about a bit this year. For several reasons.

One was our regular feature, the Employee of the Month.

It wasn't hard to find people in this town with interesting jobs – we have so much talent - but I also found these same people have certain 'values' in common.

Not only are they dedicated to their roles, but they are also committed to going that extra mile. They each believe in looking out for one another.

Secondly, earlier this year, a town visioning session was held in Omarama. In publicising this session I put together a series of stories to get people thinking about their 'vision' for our town.

The overwhelming consensus was people did not want Omarama to become yet another busy, crowded, impersonal, 'tourist' town.

They want it to keep its character - whatever that is?

Just how do you put that into words?

And how do you actively protect and build up those things we value when they are not bricks-and-mortar tangible?

A few weeks ago I read an article based around the 2018 United Nations World Happiness survey and report . Respondents from 156 countries gave their views. Among the things the report said people believed contributed to the 'happiness' of a place was the extent to which the community "shared a belief in a fair go for all", "knew someone they could rely on", was "inclusive" of all, and made time to spend with friends and family.

In another part of the same article the author speaks of an African 'value', ubuntu, "I am because we are," - a sense of interconnection.

Together, we do so much.

Early next year the Waitaki District Council is asking residents to contribute ideas to the District Plan.

"Waitaki 2030, planning strong communities" the flyer reads.

In the year 2030 ...

Do we have a vision for Omarama?

You bet we do, and the possibilities are endless.

We live and play in a unique space.

How should we share it?

What should we protect?

How can we celebrate it?

Now is the time to speak up about what is important to you, and they've said they'll listen.

Make sure you're part of this.

Let's plan to make this the best place for us all to live.

I have a feeling 2019 is going to be our year to make the difference.

There's one more thing...

There's one more thing...

I have enjoyed so many rewarding moments this year.

I would just like to say thank you.

Thank you for sharing, thank you for your contributions, thank you for letting me take your photo, thank you for everything little thing you do for our community.

Thank you all for your loyalty. I know I test that at times and push those boundaries. So, thank you to those who, without fail, fill the Gazette inbox with compliments each time an issue goes out. That is so much appreciated.

Yeah, I make mistakes. So, I appreciate the not-so-great feed-back also – that's the stuff that pushes me to be better next time.

It is a privilege to put the Gazette together and I enjoy every moment. Truly, I could not do this without you.

A world of good wishes to you all ...

The Gazette is back February 6, Waitangi Day, 2019

In the meantime, sit back, relax and enjoy this special Christmas issue.

We live in a truly beautiful part of the world and among a community that cares. Let's celebrate our place.

- Ruth Grundy, editor.

Keeping you posted

At least once every year it is quite fun to go though the stats which show just how far and wide the news about our place travels.

The Omarama Gazette is read right around the globe, from Alexandra to Anchorage. But it is the videos posted on the Omarama Gazette Facebook page that get the most attention.

The short video 'Shear Skill' which features Grant Murdoch's shearing team and wool classer Terry Mulcahy pre-lamb shearing at Bog Roy Station reached 242,700 people, scored 339 'likes', was especially liked in Wales, and was shared 820 times. Great mahi, guys.

Runner-up was the clip 'Bringing them home' which showed the Munro boys droving wethers back to Rostreiver Run after the sheep spent their summer grazing at Mt Thomas, a tradition which looks to be in its final days. This video clip reached 164.8K and was 'liked' by 6,000 people.

Two other video clips rated highly.

'It looks like we have ourselves a snow day' featured a line-up of trucks in Omarama's main streets waiting for the Lindis Pass to open and reached 8.5K people and 'Smoke on the water' which caught the start of the New Zealand Boat Marathon Commission's Twin Lakes Marathon - round 4 of competitions - reached 9.2K people.

Posts featuring only photos and news travelled a little more slowly.

The most popular of these was the April Fool's spoof 'New concept plan to bypass town' which reached 6.3K, was liked by 92, and shared 15 times.

The stories calling for a solution to the problems at the Ahuriri River Bridge Campsite and the story about Bean's and Scotty's (senior constables Nayland Smith and Peter Scott's) cannabis recovery operation each reached about 4.5K people.

Which just goes to show people actually do prefer fake news!

The Gazette Facebook page is used to share what it is not possible to in print - more photos and video and, importantly, to get community messages out quickly. You are welcome to join and contribute: www.facebook.com/omaramagazette

The first Christmas at the Lodge

The first Christmas in a new place is always something special and the first Christmas at the Lindis Lodge in the Ahuriri Valley promises to be no exception.

When Omarama Gazette called last week managers William and Alysse Hudson were busy talking Christmas trees, and chefs Cesare and Aurelio Stella had begun planning Christmas menus.

The luxury lodge which officially opened last month has already caught the attention of international media.

The unique building which 'disappears' into the surrounding landscape was designed by Architecture Workshop, of Wellington, and built by Brosnan Construction.

Owner, Singapore-based Richard Magides, stood down at the river's edge and looked back up.

What he saw was the "natural undulations" of the hills and grasslands.

And that was what inspired the brief - that the design should echo that and appear completely natural, William said.

Sited as it is neighbouring three conservation parks, William said the management of the Lodge was guided by a strong conservation and environmental ethic.

A special mix of native grass seed was prepared for 'lawns' surrounding the lodge and Poa Cita (Silver Tussock) and Chionochloa rigida (snow tussock) have been planted to settle the building into the landscape.

Indoors, the restaurant, lounge and each suite look out onto the emerging braids of the Ahuriri River, to the Ben Avon wetlands, and further up the valley to a broad sweep of the surrounding alps.

Each suite bears the name of a nearby station - Ben Avon, Dalrachney, Longslip, Ribbonwood and Birchwood.

There have been some spectacular scenes of storms chasing their way up the mountain chain, and once the fishing season opened guests have enjoyed watching fishers work the river below, William said.

Newly-appointed fishing guide Roger Webb can show guests how to tie flies while looking down on the stretch of river where they will later fish, all "catch and release" of course, he said.

Activities manager Andy Cousins oversees the outdoor pursuits - fishing, hiking, mountain-biking or horse trekking.

Denise Stella runs the stables which at present houses 12 good-natured horses and a foal

The Lodge will host two families for its first Christmas.

Although a certain amount of planning is key, head chef Cesare said, because fresh and seasonal produce guides the menu, nothing is fixed in advance.

He works on the principle "no produce is to touch the fridge".

The Christmas menu will play on tradition and feature merino lamb, turkey, ham and alpine salmon. Cesare aims to blend Italian techniques with Tangata Whenua traditions in his cooking.

The lodge has its own vegetable garden and heated greenhouses as well as a newlyplanted orchard. Fresh pasta and bread is made daily and they make their own conserves and sauces. They aim for no waste and compost three ways; using traditional composting, the Bokashi composting system, and a worm farm. Anything left is fed to the "very free range" poultry, he said.

William and Alysse were still in discussions over the Christmas tree.

An artificial tree replicating that used by Harrods, of London, had been ordered from overseas but would not arrive in time for this year's festivities and so they were debating whether or not to do as the locals do and bring in a wilding pine. That idea had Alysse and Aurelio's vote, he, himself, was a little unsure, William said.

Regardless, one thing is certain, not much that sparkles will compete with that nightsky view of the Milky Way stretching out over the valley.

Just so many hugs for Santa

Omarama Playgroup had a special visitor for its last session of the year. Fancy, he knew everybody's names, and that they had been oh, so very good! Ho, ho, ho!

(Rumour has it Santa and Otago Rural Support Trust coordinator Lindsay Purvis have much in common, often catching up for a yarn over the fence about the tricky task and expense of managing feed for reindeer in North Pole conditions.)

Santa was so well-suited to the task

A certain Mrs Claus has been very busy stitching these past few weeks in time to have Santa suited-up and ready for his busy schedule.

Santa's arrival at this year's Omarama emergency services volunteers' Christmas party was heralded by all the bells and whistles, not to mention a noisy siren and flashy lights.

As he stepped out from the makeshift 'sleigh' driven by chief elf, station officer Maurice Cowie, all was revealed.

Looking exceptionally dapper, Santa's, whose eyes twinkled through his great white beard, was sporting a brand-new fur-trimmed red suit, complete with new, shiny 'red bands'. (Some may have said he bore a close resemblance to former Chief Fire Officer Howard Williams) The great man stepped through to his magnificent chair by the fireplace to give presents to the youngest brigade members.

Following, the ceremonies, water-play was the order of the day.

What could be a better place for a hose-down on this hot summer day than the Fire Station? Santa did appear to be wishing he had brought a swim suit.

There is media speculation this gap in Santa's wardrobe will be filled with another designer creation from the 'House of Georgie Robertson' in time for next summer.

PS Predictably, no sooner had the chief elf reversed the fire truck into the shed than the 'hooter' went and it was all flashy lights and sirens again, this time for 'normal' duties.

Oh, the places you'll go...

The Omarama School final assembly of 2018 was enjoyed by a large crowd of parents, grandparents, friends and other guests, last week.

They gathered to enjoy a showcase of Christmas drama and song, and celebrate the successes of 2018.

As well, goodbyes were said to teachers, pupils and families leaving the school. Senior class teacher Peter Schasching, who initially came to the school on a shortterm basis and remained for two years, is leaving to travel, and Helen Blick, who has spent the past 10 years as a relief teacher, is retiring to spend more time with family. Last term, Shona Denton was appointed as a third teacher at the school because pupil numbers had topped 50.

There was no funding for a third teacher to start 2019.

However, she will take on Mr Schasching's role, Board of Trustees chairperson David (Gundy) Anderson said.

Gundy also emphasised the role Friends of the School played in providing funds for extra equipment and experiences for the pupils, and thanked the group for its fund-raising efforts.

This was the final year at the school for the Smith and Walsh families and Friends of the School chairperson Emma Moore made presentations acknowledging their service.

The senior students leaving for intermediate and high school were farewelled in song and slideshows.

Dominic Walsh will attend Waitaki Boys High School, and Jessica Smith and Gemma Patterson will go to St Kevin's College in Oamaru. Suzie Smith and Madison Innes will go to Craighead Diocesan School, in Timaru.

The Sir Peter Blake Young Leader award was presented to Dom Walsh.

The Omarama Gazette award for diligence in literacy was presented to Laura Patterson.

Principal Kim McKenzie acknowledged staff members – Peter Schasching, Shona Denton, Kris Lindsay, Pam Harding, Ange Smith, Lex Perriam, Ann Garthwaite and

Use a picnic set and reusable containers to enjoy a low-waste lunch without leaving any rubbish behind. Don't let waste get into our lakes and rivers – it can impact water quality.

Here's a few tips for a low-waste picnic:

- · Pack your sandwiches rather than buying them in wrapping.
- · Use beeswax wraps or reusable containers for carrying food.
- · Fruit is a great low-waste option.
- · Pack a reusable water bottle and flask for waste-free drinks.
- · Use a face cloth for wiping hands and faces.
- Take home any waste including bottles, packaging and food waste or use provided rubbish bins.

Pretty plant is a pretty big threat

The Upper Waltaki Water Zone Committee approved funding to target a pretty looking yet quita invasive weed species as part of the immediate Steps biodiversity programme.

Cotonaastar looks like a perfect Christmas plant with red berries and green leaves, but it is considered one of the bigger threats to biodiversity in Upper Waitaki. The shrub matures quickly, is long-living, and crowds out and excludes native shrub species in a wide range of habitats.

It is most effective to target woods in the initial stages of their invasion before they can get established and threaten native blodivenity. The Water Zone Committee has worked together in a successful joint project with the

Merry Christmas

and a Happy Festive Season to All

To all who have entrusted us with their Real Estate Sales and Purchases during 2018 a very big THANK YOU.

As a resident of Omarama I am on hand to confidentially discuss your Real Estate needs over the Holiday period covering the Upper Waitaki and Lake Ohau.
